The editor of the Journal is much exercised about the apostasy of four-ninths of his party, or four-ninths of their representatives. His indignant demonstrations on this point are highly amusing, considering that they come from an old political stager. He is surprised, disappointed and wrathful, as if the conduct of these four-ninths was unexpected, not dreamed of. We can't sympathize with our neighbor at all. We told him how to interpret the signs of the times; and he knows that we have always told him the truth. Yet he got indignant at us, and was very impertinent. We said that he and others were sold; but what was the use? Their selfconcelt was too great. They would not look at facts or symptoms, and finger-boards all pointing one way. For the sake of votes and for the sake of harmony, these four-ninths pledged themselves to a platform, it is said. They didn't mean anything by that platform, and in that they were like many others. Whilst an indifferent assent was given to the platform. there was an opposite current with which many were drifting and would not stop. We shall not denounce these men as apostates, as acting in bad faith at all. They made their own speeches, and were understood by men who heard them.

We heard a speech of Mr. Clay. There was no disguise about it. It was an out and out Administration speech. If anybody mistook him, it was not his fault. We saw several reports of Mr. Randall's speeches, and we don't think he could be misungerstood, unless a man were determined to misunderstand him. We presume the others are in the same

These men are entirely wrong, in our judgment, but not treacherous. If their constituents are deceived, whose fault is it? At a free election under the Constitution and laws of Kentucky not one of these four-ninths would occupy his present seat in Congress, unless the people had been deceived by the editor of the Journal, who insisted that these men stood on the platform. It is hardly fair to quote what they said, unless all they said is

We are against the position of these men, and would not support them. We declined to support an organization that made them its leaders. They were not on our platform-that was plain-and we could not afford any responsibility for them, however humble. We are too good a friend to the Union of these States to connive at their policy. They are for the Union, no doubt; but the Union may well pray to be saved from such friends.

We, however, think it unjust to accuse them of apostasy or treachery. We did not were misunderstood it was not their fault. They are for the present Administration during the canvass. They would find little fault to be sure: refer to the platform perhaps, and tell us they would have had some things otherwise; but feel it a duty to give an unqualified support to the Adminis

To be sure, when one reads that platform and sees the grave charges it brings against the party in power, it does look strange to see a man acting with that party, who professed to adopt such a platform as his political faith. There is a monstrous wrong somewhere, it will be thought. So we think, and we were not a party to the affair. We saw that with many this platform was a humbug, and that it would be used to humbug the public. Honest men who believed it affiliated in a party with others who didn't half believe it, or didn't believe it at all. The result 's, that men who came into powe with that platform are antegonistic in sentiment, and no personal dishonesty or treachery chargeable either. The crime is in putting out a platform that a party doesn't believe; that is represented as the best that could be done. Such a course leads to what has occurred. Somebody is cheated or disappointed. In the present instance, these four-ninths voted as the Republicans expected. The Union men of Kentucky had evidence enough they would so vote. It is some relief that there were only four who so voted. We didn't know but one or two more would do likewise.

It is claimed that the per cent. on the national debt is decreasing, and we are informed authoritatively that sums have been borrowed as low as four per cent. It is easy out of this to see what the real interest is. We take for example the five-twenty bonds. The interest upon these is payable in gold. The purchaser invests a certain sum, say one thousand dollars, in these bonds, redeemable in five or twenty years. In the meanwhile he gets the interest in coin. It is to be noticed that he is not required to loan the thousand dollars in the precious metals. He has only to pay in the legal tender notes, alias greenbacks. He pays one thousand dollars in this currency, really worth at the present rates only $666%. For this he gets forty dollars interest. This makes not four per cent., as the Secretary states, but exactly six per cent. As these fa vorable terms are rare, we can, in all moderation, put it at the average estimate of six per cent., or, in reality, nearly ten. We are not disposed to censure very severely, but rather to admire the ingenuity of Mr. Chase, for the adroit manner in which he keeps up appearances. Any purchaser of these bonds sees that he is gaining nearly ten per cent. on his investment. The people, on the other hand, who are eventually to pay, are not supposed to look so carefully into the matter, but are disposed to be gratified at the moderate interest set forth by the Secretary. Thus it succeeds all round. The speculator is pleased to know that he is actually making a good thing of it, and thinks well of the fivetwenties, while the people are satisfied for a precisely contrary reason.

The rebels claim to have captured Brownlow's type and press. If they had taken him at the same time and made him write just such articles South as he makes speeches North, they would have been strengthened equal to ten thousand men.

other causes besides the depreciation in the currency, and says that had it been possible to borrow coin fast enough for the disbursements, almost if not altogether the same eftects would have been produced. No one will deny that such an impossible event would have had an effect, but by no means what the Secretary estimates it at. The dis covery of the gold in California and Australia lowered the value of that metal. An excess of the precious metals by borrowing, as Mr. Chase suggests, would have had the same effect here, and in consequence it would have left the country until the quantity remaining ra sed its value to that in other civilized countries. Just here is where Mr. Chase errs. He forgets that the new currency is not a recognized value

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY: THURSDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 17, 1863.

Mr. Chase, in his recent report, ascribes the present rise in the prices in part to where. It is so only with ug. The tendency, therefore, as in the previous case, is to drive the precious metals from the country, and as our currency has no fixed basis but fluctuates with the chances of war, the tendency, from the very uncertainty of the value, is to keep up this outflow. Mr. Chase, we know, has at various times been authorized to issue legal tender notes to the amount of four hundred millions, or near it. This bears no interest. It is money borrowed without interest. Are we to under stand that if this amount in gold could have been borrowed on the same terms gold would now be quoted in the markets at 50% cents premium, and prices been according, or any hing near it? The very statement of the roposition carries its absurdity on its face. Mr. Chase's idea seems to be that a promise to pay in the future, when there are many contingencies against it, is equivalent to the money down. There are very few persons who will agree with him upon this point. The real effect, if borrowing gold had been possible, would be upon the credit of the Government. It would have fluctuated, but with an adequate supply of that metal, not excessive, the effect would have been to keep prices in a normal condition. A scarcity, there being no other currency in competition, would have had just the reverse effect, and would have kept prices down. It seems to us perfectly clear that if we must give a dollar and a half of our money to get a dollar of any other nation's, that would of itself raise our prices for every other nations, and that would be ascribable entirely to our currency. Mr. Chase puts down another fact in assigning causes for the present inflation of prices, which certainly merits the attention of the country. He says : "Such disbursements made in coin would have enriched fortunate contractors, stimulated lavish expenditures, and so inflated prices in the same way, and nearly to the same extent as when made in notes." This is assigned in a grave State paper as one of the causes of the high prices at present. We are told that the enriching of ortunate contractors in the present time of peril and distress is one of the prime causes for the prices which grind down the poor man. To have an effect of such magnitude as this there must have been more than one or a hundred or a thousand "fortunate contract-

thing in which we come in competition with ors." It tells us in smoother phrase that one of the causes of inflation is the frauds by which thousands of speculators have been enriched at the expense of the country and the citizens. This certainly presents a spectacle worthy of the attention of an economical people. We learn from this high authority that the wholesale merchant or the purchaser of a few pounds of sugar or salt, on entering the market, has to compete with these contractors with long purses, filled out of the nation's treasury, who, in the grat ification of lust or appetite, are able systemat cally to keep up prices. It is no flattering picture Mr. Chase presents to us, either of the care taken by the Government in letting out contracts, or the integrity of those whom they employ, since they produce such consequences as this. Mr. Chase offers some other reasons for the same effect, which are entitled to their weight, but by no means to the extent which he gives them. No one can read this part of the report without being impressed with the idea that, in the anxiety of the Secretary to defend his financial scheme, he has been driven to seek for remote causes for that which is capable of a very simple explanation. Among the schemes which have been especially favorites with the Secretary of the Treasury is the establishment of National Banks throughout the Union; and he dwells with considerable satisfaction upon the fact that they are already established in seventeen States, and that one is in contemplation in New Orleans. As this subject occupies much of the report, we turned with curiosity to see the result of so much labor, over which the author of the plan prided himself: The Comtroller of the Currency reports the rganization under the national banking act, fior to the 29th of November, of one hun dred and thirry-four associations—all of which, upon the suggestion of the Secretary, have adopted the name of National Banks, distinguished by order of organization and by lo-cality. These banking associations have been formed in seventeen States and in the District of Columbia, and have an aggregate capital of $16,081,200. There is the aggregate capital invested in plan by which the Secretary of the Treasury proposed to establish on a firm and uniform basis the entire credit of the country. We turned then to our present indebtedness to see what weight was to rest upon a foundation upon whose strength the author prided himself. On the 30th of June last, by the same report, we find it to be $1,098,793,181 37. That is, six months ago the national debt was eleven times as great as the whole capital invested in Mr. Chase's favorite scheme. The mountain has indeed produced a mouse.

Abstract of Gen. Halleck's Report. WASHINGTON, Dec. 12, 1863. The report of the General-in-Chief is a very engthy document, comprising mainly a grand ummary of the multary operations since his last annual report. Referring to the Department of the Potomac, Gen. Halleck says Burnside's proposed change of base was not approved by him. Burnside, therefore, consented to cross his army by the fords of the Upper appahannock, and then move down to selve the bights of Fredericksburg, while a small force was to be sent north of the river, to enable Houpt to reopen the railroad. This plan was assented to, but not approved. Burnside, justead of crossing the Rappahannock by the ds, as he was expected to do, marched his whole army down the north bank of that river Lee's army, in the meantime, moved down to the south bank of the river, which was at this time fordable a few miles above the town; and General Sumner asked permission to cross and occupy the hights, but it was refused, and no attempt was made to effect a passage till December 11th, by which time Lee's arm had been concentrated. It is alleged that the defeat, which we suffered soon after, resulted from the neglect to forward the pontoon train from Washington; whereas the pontoons at the time were at Berlin, in the Army of the Potomac. The delay was therefore unavoidable, and, on investigation of matters, Burn-side pronounced it so. Speaking of affairs in Grant's department, the General in Chief says: "It has been alleged that Grant positively disobeyed the instructions of his superiors. It is hardly necssary to remark that Grant never diso an order; moreover, he has never complained that the Government did not furnish him all the means and assistance in its power to fa-cilitate the execution of any plans he saw fit o adopt."

The General suggests that, as the rebe

army lives upon the country through which it passes, the Federal army do the same, as it facilitates rapidity of movement. Our commanders in the rebel States hadly ever find supplies, and in the border States it is difficult to distinguish between real friends and enemies. In regard to sutlers, he says the entire abo-lition of the system would rid the army of the incumbrance of sutlers' wagons on the march and the nuisance of sutlers' stalls and booths a camp, and it would improve the discipline and efficiency of our troops in many ways, and particularly by removing from the camps the prolific evils of drunkenees. It is not difficult for sulers to act the part of spies, informers, smugglers, and contraband traders. The General thinks the court-martial a too umbrous proceeding for the battlefield, and nggests some more speedy punishment. He suggests the Inspector General's depart-ent be merged into the Adjutant's General's epartment. He recommends several reformations in relation to the organization of regiments, brigades and corps.

He claims that the cartel for the exchan

M. the dwelling of Mr. Henry Ros-enthal, on North Mississippi street, opposite the State House, was entered by burglars. The back door from the yard was forced and the door opening into Mr. Rosenthal's bedroom entered by means of burglar's implements. Suddenly Mr. Resenthal was awakened by a man standing with a knife over him, and threatening to kill him if he made the slightest noise or the slightest demonstration. He threatened Mrs. Resenthal, who is in a delicate way. The result was that the in a delicate way. The result was that the burglar, who was masked, took from the pillows under Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal's heads, wenty-five hundred dollars in greenback ten dollars in one gold coin and one dollar in another. The burglar, coolly standing over Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal with his knife drawn, Mr. and Mrs. Roseathal with his kills orawn, counted the money, pronounced it right, and then, saying he was going to search a bureau in another room, backed out, knife in hand, and probably loaded down with pistols, keeping his eyes all the time upon Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal, lying in bed. He, the burglar, according to all suppositions of the case, did not stop at the aforesaid bureau, but went the back was climbed the fonce and nut on the back way, climbed the fence and put with his $2,511. Now the question is, after this, one of the most daring burglaries ever committed, what are citizens to do to protect themselves? They are not safe on the street, daylight or dark, and it is by what we authentically relate above, demonstrated that they are not safe in their own domicils—their own castles, accord-ing to the old English law. What are we to do? Arm ourselves, and go round murder-ing, or rely still further upon the constituted ng, or rely still laters upon the property?

MESSAGE OF JEFF. DAVIS.

Confessions of Disaster to the Rebel Arms-Foreign Relations Unsatisfactory to Davis-The Exchange of Pris-

The message of Jeff. Davis to the rebel Conress is published in the Richmond papers t is anything but a cheerful document. His summary of the military situation is especially mournful. We give some extracts:

Grave reverses befel our arms soon after your departure from Richmond. Early in July our strongholds at Vicksburg and Port Hudson, together with their entire garrisons, capitulated to the combined land and naval forces of the enemy. The important interior position of Jackson next fell into their temporary possession. Our unsuccessful assault on the post at Helena was followed at a later period by the invasion of Arkansas; and the retreat of our array from Little Rock, care to retreat of our army from Little Rock gave to the enewy the control of the important valley in which it is situated.

The able commander who * * * The able commander who conducted the campaign in Virginia determined to meet the threatened advance on Richmond—for which the enemy had made long and costly preparations—by forcing their armies to cross the Potomae and fight in defense of their owa Cap tal and homes. Transferring the battle-field to their own soil, he succeeded in compelling their rapid retreat from Virginia, and in the hard-fought battle of Gettysburg in flicted such severity of punishment as disabled them from early renewal ishment as disabled them from early renewal of the campaign as originally projected. Unfortunately the communications on which our deneral relied for receiving his supplies of deliberation, after securing large trains of cap-ured supplies, and with a constant but unac-cepted tender of battle. On more than one cepted tender of battle. On more than one occasion the enemy has since made demonstration of a purpose to advance, invariably followed by a precipitate retreat to intrenched lines on the approach of our forces. The effective check thus opposed to the advance of the invaders at all points was such as to afford hope of their early expulsion from portions of the territory previously occupied by them, when the country was painfully surprised by the intelligence that the officer in command of Cumberland Gap had surrendered that important and easily detensible pass without firing a shot, upon the summons of a force still believed to have been inadequate to its reduction, and when reenthe seat of government and middle Tennessee. This easy success of the enemy was followed by an advance of General Rosecrans into leorgia, and our army evacuated Chattanooga and availed itself of the opportunity thus af-orded of winning, on the field of Chickamauga, one of the most brilliant and decisive victories of the war. This signal defeat of General Rosecrans was followed by his retreat into Chattanooga, where his imperiled position had the invasion at other points, forcing the concentration, for his relief, of large bodies of troops withdrawn from the armies in the Mississippi Valley and in Northern Virginia. The combined forces thus accumulated against us in Tennessee so greatly outnumbered our army such as to ensure on the ordinance and mining bureaus are very gratifying, and the extension of our means of supply of arms and munitions of war from our home resources has been sewhere successful, and finally to retire with elsewhere successful, and finally to retire with his whole army to a position some twenty or thirty miles to the rear. It is believed that if the troops who yielded to the assault had fought with the valor which they had displayed on previous occasious, and which was manifested in this battle on the other parts of the lines, the enemy would have been reprised with very great slaughter, and our country would have escaped the misfortune, and the army the mortification, of the first deand the army the mortification, of the first defeat that has resulted from misconduct by the troops. In the meantime the army of General Burnside was driven from its field positions in Eastern Tennessee, and forced to re-trest into its intrenchments at Knoxville, where for some weeks it was threatened with capture by the forces under General Long-street. No information has reached me of the final result of the operations of our command### er, though intelligence has arrived of his withdrawal from that place. FOREIGN RELATIONS.

On this point the message says: I regret to inform you that there has been no improvement in the state of our relations with foreign countries since my message of January last. On the contrary, there has been still greater divergence in the conduct of European nations from that practical impar-tiality which alone deserves the name of neuasanmed a character positively unfriendly. You have heretofore been informed that, by ommon understanding, the initiative in all action touching the contest on this continent had been left by foreign powers to the two great maritime nations of Western Europe, and that the Governments of these two nations had agreed to take no measures without previous concert. The result of these arrange-ments has therefore placed it in the power of either France or England to obstruct at pleasure the recognition to which the Confederacy is justly entitled, or even to prolong the continu-ance of hostilities on this side of the Atlantic, the policy of either could be promoted by the postponement of peace. Each, too, thus be-came possessed of great influence in so shaping the general exercise of neutral rights in Europe as to render them subservient to the purpose of aiding one of the belligerents to the detriment of the other. I referred, at your last session, to some of the leading points in the course pursued by professed neutrals, which betrayed a partisan leaning to the side of our enemies; but events have since occurred which induce me to renew the subject in greater detail than was then deemed The message then recapitulates the action of England in reference to the observance of the blockade, and discusses at length the validity of that action under international law.

In this connection it is said : The intimation that relations with these tates would be discreditable because they are States would be discretizable because they are slaveholding, would probably have been omitted if the official personage who has published it to the world had remembered that these States were, when colonies, made slaveholding by the direct exercise of the power of Great Britain, whose dependencies they were, and whose interests in the slave trade were then supposed to require that her colonies should be made slaveholding.

It is complained, also, that England has acted unfairly in permitting the Federals to

No public protest nor opposition, however, has been made by his Imperial Majesty against the prohibition to trade with us, imposed on French citizens by the paper blockade of the United States, although thave reason to believe that an unsuccessful attempt was made on his part to secure the assent of the British Government to a course of action more consonant with the dictates of of action more consonant with the dictates of public law and with the demands of justice towards us. As to the right of the rebels to claim recognition as a nation the message says: For nearly three years this Government has exercised unquestioned jurisdiction over many millions of willing and united people. It has met and defeated vast armies of invasion, who best to give him the entire floor. On Thursday night two young boys of Rushville, named Shockley and Havens, the latter a grandson of Father Havens, the Methodist Missionary, were taken up for some trifting misdemeanor and sent to jail, whether as punistement or until a hearing of their case could be had, we did not learn, and were turned into the room with the insane man. The horrers of that night, in that jail, no pen can ever portray. The jail being remote from dwellings, perhaps the citizens were not even awakened by the agonizing cries of those boys in their death-struggle with that powerful many wrought to freuzy by his creazed intellect.

When the jailor went to give his prisoners their breakfast, a ghasily sight met his vision; the boys lay weltering in their gore—their throats were cut from ear to car.

MEXICO. On the movements in Mexico the message

The events of the last year have produced portant changes in the condition of our authern neighbor. The occupation of the capital of Mexico by the French army, and the establishment of a provisional govern-ment, followed by the radical change in the constitution of the country, have excited lively interest. Although preferring our own vert ment and institutions to those of other untries, we can have no disposition to contest the exercise by them of the same right of lest the exercise by them of the same right of self-government which we assert for ourselves. If the Mexican people prefer a monarchy to a republic, it is our plain duty cheerfully to acquiesce in their decision, and to evince a sincere and friendly interest in their prosperity. If, however, the Mexicans prefer maintaining their former institutions, we have no reason to anywhered any electrical munitions were interrupted by extraordinary we have no reason to apprehend any obstacle the foods, which so swelled the Potomac as to render impassable the fords by which has advance had been made, and no was thus forced to a withdrawal, which was conducted with government not acceptable to the nation, and the wastern as to be a supplied to the property of the Prouch has solemnly disclaimed any purpose to impose on Mexico a form of the property of the proper the eminent personage to whom the throne has been tendered declines its acceptance un-less the offer be sanctioned by the suffrages of the people. In either event, therefore, we may confidently expect the continuance of those peaceful relations which have been maintained on the frontier, and even a large development of the commerce already existing to the my advantage of the two countries.

> THE ARMY. The rebel army, according to the message, is in better condition than ever before, but men are still greatly needed:

In view of the large conscription recently ordered by the enemy, and their subsequent call for volunteers, to be followed, if ineffectual, by a still further draft, we are admonishmons of a force still believed to have been inadequate to its reduction, and when reenforcements were within supporting distance and had been ordered to his aid. The entire garrison, including the commander, being still held as prisoners by the enemy, I am unable to suggest any explanation of this dissert, which laid open Eastern Tennessee and Southwestern Virginia to hostile operations, fying the exemption law, restricting details, and broke the line of communication between the seat of government and middle Tennessee. fying the exemption law, restricting details, and placing la the ranks such of the able-bodied men now employed as wagoners, nurses, cooks, and other employes who are doing service for which the negroes may be found competent.

The message recommends the organization of an Invalid Corps, and urges that all new

Tennessee so greatly outnumbered our army as to encourage the enemy to attack. After a long and severe battle, in which great carnage was inflicted on him, some of our troops nexplicably abandoned positions of great for the manufacture of small arms and of gun-strength, and by a disorderly retreat com-powder, for the supply of niter from artificial pelled the commander to withdraw the forces have been so distributed through the country

States of those relatives and friends of the prisoners in our hands who are unable to un-derstand why the cartel is not executed in their favor, by the groundless assertion that we are the parties who refuse compliance. At-tempts are also made to shield themselves from the execration excited by their own odi-ous treatment of our officers and soldiers ons treatment of our cincers and solders now captive in their hands, by mis statements, such as that the prisoners held by us are deprived of food. To this last accusation the conclusive answer has been made that, in accordance with our law and the general orders of the department, the rations of the prisoners are precisely the same in of the prisoners are precisely the same, in quantity and quality, as those served out to our own gallant soldiers in the field, and which have been found sufficient to support them in their arduous campaigns, while it is not pre-tended by the enemy that they treat prisoners by the same generous rule. By an indulgence, perhaps unprecedented, we have even allowed the prisoners in our hands to be supplied by their friends at home with comforts not enjoyed by the men who captured them in battle. In contrast to this treatment, the most revolting inhumanity has characterized the conduct of the United States towards prisoners held by them. One prominent fact, which admits no decial or palliation, must suffice as a test. The officers of our army, natives of southern and semi-tropical climates, and unprepared for the cold of a northern winter, have been conveyed, for imprisonment, during the rigors of the present season, to the most northern and exposed situations that could be selected by the enemy. There, beyond the reach of comforts and often even of news from home and family, and exposed to the piercing cold of the northern lakes, they are held by men who cannot be ignorant of, even if they do not design, the probable result. How many of our unfortun-ate friends and comrades, who have passed nscathed through numerous battles, will erish on Johnson's Island, under the cruel

trial to which they are subjected, none but the Omnisciont can foretell. CONCLUSION. The message concludes as follows:

The hope last year entertained of an early termination of the war has not been realized. Could carnage have satisfied the appetite of our enemy for the destruction of human life, or grief have appeased their wanton desire to inflict human suffering, there has been blood-shed enough on both sides, and two lands have been sufficiently. have been sufficiently darkened by the weeds of mourning to induce a disposition for peace. If unanimity in a people could dispel delusion, it has been displayed too unmistekably not to have silenced the pretense that the Southern States were merely disturbed by a factions insurrection, and it must long since have been admitted that they were but exercising their reserved right to modify their own Government in such manner as would best secure their own happiness. But these est secure their own happiness. But these considerations have been powerless to allay the unchristian bate of those who, long accusobtain supplies in that country, while denying the same privilege to the rebels.

The course of France is thus referred to:

the same privilege to the rebels.

The course of France is thus referred to: The course of France is thus reterred to.

It is not in my power to apprise you to what extent the Government of France shares the views unreservedly avowed by that of Great Britain, no published correspondence of the French Government on the subject having been received. No public protest nor opposite the received the renest sources of their presumant of the protest for the only peace possible between us—a peace which, recognizing the impassable gulf which divides us, may leave the two people separately to recover from the injuries in—fitted on both by the causeless war now received. nitted on both by the causeless war now waged against us. Having begun the war in direct violation of their constitution, which forbade the attempt to coerce a State, they have been hardened by crime, until they no longer attempt to veil their purpose to destroy the institutions and subvert the Government and independence of those States. We now know that the only reliable hope for secretain the vivor of our resistance. ace is in the vigor of our resistan peace is in the vigor of our resistance, as the cessation of their hostility is only to be expected from the pressure of their necessities. The patriotism of the people has proved equal to every sacrifice demanded by our country's need. We have been united as a eople never were united under like circum stances before. God has blessed us with success disproportionate to our means, and, under His divine favor, our fabors must at last be crowned with the reward due to men who have given all they possessed to the righteous defense of their inallenable rights, their homes, and their altars. ces before. ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE FROM THE MILITARY

PRISON-THE PLOT DISCOVERED .- Yesterday morning Sergeant Myers, of company G, Twentieth Kentucky infantry, in going his rounds through the military prison, discovered that the prisoners, some two hundred in number, had, during the night previous, made an attempt to escape from the prison by digging dy's husband she had some little money and a under the wall in the same manner that the rebel prisoners confined in the different prisons of the North have made their escape. How long the prisoners have been at work in thus digging is unknown, but at the time the discovery was made they had succeeded in digging a ditch, or rather tunnel, some five feet in depth and several yards in length, and had it not been for the timely discovery of the plot there is little doubt but that the last one of them would have succeeded in making their escape. With what impliments they succeeded in excavating and removing the earth is not known. At the time the discovery was made they had nothing in their possession, or any where in the prison, with the exception of their perknives. It appears that as they removed the earth they had placed it under their bunks, thereby hiding it from view, and that the hole in the ground was covered over with boards, with a thin layer of earth placed on them. The outer wall of the prison covers a considerable space, and within that is a building which is the prison proper, and it is within this inner wall that these prisoners were con fined. In this inner department are the cells in which the prisoners sleep, and a small passage, the privilege of which they are allowed both day and night. In this passage a guard is always stationed. This excavation was commenced at the upper end of the passage, between two of the cells, and out of sight of the guard. If the prisoners had succeeded in cutting out of the inner prison they would have had a considerable distance further to burrow before reaching the outer wall. The attempt was a bold one, and had it proved successful the prisoners now confined in the prison, togeththis have been on their way to Dixie; or perhaps they would have succeeded in obtaining arms here, when they would, no doubt, have commenced a raid of plunder through the FAIR FOR THE POOR .- Nothwithstanding the exceeding inclemency of the weather there was a large crowd at Masonic Temple, including a number of beautiful ladies, who braved the storm and turned out to assist in the noble cause for which the fair is given, the benefit of the suffering poor of our city. In getting up this fair the ladies have spared neither time nor expense to make it the finest ever given in our city, and in this they have not been disappointed. On entering the hall last night our attention was at once attracted to the fine Chrismas tree which is in the center of the hall, and which is most beautifully arranged. The fair continues during the week Those who wish to spend a pleasant evening should not fail to attend. By the advertisement of the Enrollment Board, to be found in our local notice column, it will be seen that they have determined to give Thursday and Friday nights to the examination of special cases, which are explained in the advertisement. On Sunday, from 10 o'clock A. M. to 2 P. M., the Board will examine the claims of persons from Henry county.

THE WEATHER -Yesterday was one of the most disagreeable days we have experienced for a long time. In the morning it was very cold, with hail and snow, but about noon the weather moderated considerably, and a rain set in, which made the streets exceedingly wet and muddy. But few persons were on the streets, and items were very scarce.

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY HAS NOT et given notice of any intention to withdraw this popu ar Loan from Sale at Par, and until ten days notice i ven, the undersigned, as "GENERAL SUBSCRIPTION AGENT," will con inue to supply the public.

The whole amount of the Loan authorized is Five Hundred Millions of Dollars, NEARLY FOUR HUN-DRED MILLIONS HAVE BEEN ALREADY SUB SCRIBED FOR AND PAID INTO THE TREASURY. stly within the last seven months. The large dema om abroad, and the rapidly increasing home deman for use as the basis for circulation by National Banking Associations now organizing in all parts of the country, will, in a very short period, absorb the balance. Sales have lately ranged from ten to fifteen millions weekly quently exceeding three millions daily, and as it is well known that the Secretary of the Treasury has ample and unfailing resources in the Duties on Imports and Internal Revenues, and in the issue of the Interest bearing Legal Tender Treasury Notes, it is almost a cer nty that he will not find it necessary, for a long time the paroxysms of this dreadful disease will be nent Loans, THE INTEREST AND PRINCIPAL OF

WHICH ARE PAYABLE IN GOLD. Prudence and self-interest must force the minds of those contemplating the formation of National Banking they should lose no time in subscribing to this most popular Loan. It will soon be beyond their reach and advance to a handsome premium, as was the result with the "Seven-Thirty" Loan, when it was all sold and could no longer be subscribed for at p. r.

It is a SIX PER CENT, LOAN, THE INTEREST AND

rate of premium on coin.

The Government requires all duties on imports to b paid in coin; these duties have for a long time past amounted to over a Quarter of a Million Dollars daily, a sum nearly three times greater than that required in e payment of the interest on all the 5-20's and other permanent Loans. So that it is hoped that the surplu Coin in the Treasury, at no di tant day, will enable the United States to resume specie payments upon all liabilities.

The loan is called 5-20 from the fact that whilst the Bonds may run for twenty years, yet the Government has a right to pay them off in gold, at par, at any time after five years. THE INTEREST IS PAID HALF-YEARLY, viz: on he first days of November and May. Subscribers can have Coupon Bonds, which are pay ble to bearer, and are $50, $100, $500 and $1,000, o Registered Bonds of same der on, $5,000 and $10,000. For Banking purposes and for investments of Trust-moneys the Registered Bonds ar These 5-20's cannot be taxed by States, cities, town

Without doubt the allegation of villification and misrepresentation put forward as the reason for declining hereafter to receive supplies is a mere subterfuge, the real reason being the pressure of the jealousy of the people of Richmond of the fact that, through the liberality of our Government and friends at home, the Union prisoners in their hands were said to be doing better than any family could live in the rebel capital. live in the rebel capital.

NEW YORK, December 16.

Official information has been received at headquarters that all the rebel works at Port Cavallo, Texas, have been captured by our forces. Not a man was lost on our side.

Port Cavallo and the captured works are situated on the point of a peninsula which separates Matagorda Bay from the gulf. The possession of this point clears the entrance to the bay, and gives the Union army command of several important places, Saluria, Port Savacea, and Matagorda.

A short distance back from the hay is Victoria, and several other towns, all of which

This farm is located immediately upon the furupike road leading from Lebanon to Springfield, as miles from the former and three from the latter place, and is only 40 minutes drive to Lebanon, connecting with he rathroad leading to Loui-ville and Nashville. There is now under rapid construction an additional rail road connecting Lebanon with Chiefmant and Knoxville. Tencessee, which it is said will be completed with none year. In addition to these facilities there is a network of turnpike roads leading in every direction through the country. This fand is situated in the midst of a fertile and well cuttivated country, and there is no part of Kentucky better adapted for g ass, hemp command tobacco. The farm is celebrated for its abundatice of stock water at all seasons of the year, there being a stream of water running through the center, which is well supplied with springs, so that at any time it is only necessary to open gates to allow any part of the farm to have water accommodations. There is an ample supply of timber for all purposes. The entire wood hand about 50 acres of the open land, is well set in bine grass, and about 40 acres in timothy for meadow. The whole of the grass lands have now upon them a fine crop for the coming winter.

There is upon the premises a two-story dwelling with 8 rooms, and has two fronts, one fronting he pike, the other the farm. The out buildings are good negro cabing stables and sheds, ice house, poultry house, carriage and hough pouse, milk house &c. &c.

By the steamer Beile Memphis, from Memphis on the 11th, and the City of Alton, from New Orleans on the 23, I have an extra New Orleans Times, of Saturday, Dec. 5, bringing important news as follows:

Another victory has been gained by the soldiers of the Department of the Guif over the rebels in Texas.

Important official information has been received at the Department headquarters that all the rebel forces at Port Cavalio were captured by our forces, and not a man lost captured by our forces, and not a man lost captured by our forces, and not a man lost captured the Union troops.

All the garrison guns fell late our hands. It is not known what number of the enemy have been taken, but at last accounts from there previous to the capture, the rebel garrison consisted of 1,000 men, under command of Col. Bradfett.

A Texas refugee informs us that about two months ago there were seven heavy guns and five field pieces in the port of Cavallo.

Port Cavallo and the captured works are located on a point of the Peninsula which separates Matagorda Bay from the Gulf. The possession of this point clears the entrance to the Bay and gives the Union army the command of several important places, viz: Saluria, Port Lavaca and Matagorda.

A short distance back from the Bay are Vietoria and several other towns, all of which are open to the occupation of our troops. Great Chant for the People.

when the fat things of the land are plenty, and the wise have a store thereof.

Make ready then ye people and be wise, for if ya lack of the fat things of the land, your children will cry aloud for plum cake and pudding.

Go not to thy neighbor to borrow, for why should be give the proceeds of his laber to fools.

Buy freely then, oh ye people, and lack not, for the day draweth nigh.

Make ready, make ready for the day oh ye people. Exchange freely your greenbacks for Wines, yea and for the products of France, even Raisins, Citron and Currants. Buy ye also Spices that are freeh, and Sauces from your mother England.

For of what account is turkey without dressing, or a roast without seasonling?

Then be prepared on ye people, and buy freely yea, buy Hams, sugar-cured be Stagg; also, Buckwheat Flour, Cranberries and Crab Cider, for the day draweth nigh.

Yea, the poor canreloice, for the swine are slaughtered and Hominy and Bears are plenty. The rich also will assist them.

You help-meet smileth and your children residee, for have you not declared that your purse was open, and and all these trings and more too should be bought of ed9 d12
